A new beginning, rooted in tradition

Kalarpan is a Kathak dance institute founded by Garvita Sharma, with a vision to grow beyond dance while remaining rooted in Indian classical culture.

THE CLIENT

Garvita Sharma

Founder • Kathak teacher

Teaching Kathak for over 7 years, Garvita wanted an identity that could feel personal, graceful and enduring.

THE BRIEF

Kathak first.

Indian classical arts next.

The identity needed to be culturally rooted without feeling dated — with enough flexibility to scale into Indian classical music and allied arts.

KALA + ARPAN

The name itself became the foundation of the identity.

Kalarpan

“An offering of art.”

The name was gifted by Garvita’s guru, Saswati Sen, on Guru Purnima — marking a new beginning for the institute.

KALARPAN

Kalarpan is not merely a name; it is a Guru's blessing, passed from one generation of Kala to the next. On the sacred occasion of Guru Purnima, Saswati Sen gave her student, Garvita Sharma, a name for a new beginning — Kalarpan: an offering of one's art. In the timeless journey of Guru and Shishya, what is learnt is never truly kept; it is nurtured, lived, and eventually offered back — to the Guru, to the divine, to the audience, and to the art itself. Kalarpan is born from that very emotion: when Kala becomes devotion, and learning becomes an offering.

The logo carries this story within every form. At its centre, Garvita's own Kathak silhouette blooms from a lotus, inspired by the Pushpata Hastak — the graceful gesture of offering flowers. Like the lotus that rises from the depths of muddy waters to open into light, the artist too grows through discipline, devotion, and practice — rooted in tradition, yet forever unfolding. Within its petals live Ta, They, Tat, the rhythmic syllables that breathe life into Kathak. And at the heart of it all stands the dancer herself — not an imagined figure, but the very artist to whom this name was offered. The logo, therefore, becomes Kalarpan in its truest form: a Guru's gift, a Shishya's journey, and Kala offered back with love.

An offering through movement

The identity translates a deeply familiar Kathak gesture into a visual language for the institute.

PUSHPATA HASTAK

In Kathak, flowers are symbolically offered to the audience, the Guru and the deities. The Pushpata Hastak opens outward like a flower in bloom.

The result is not a decorative lotus — it is a visual metaphor for offering, devotion and artistic expression.

Rooted in mud. Rising into bloom.

The lotus gives Kalarpan a symbol of growth that is both culturally resonant and visually distinctive.

ROOTEDNESS

Tradition is the root from which the artist grows.

RESILIENCE

The lotus rises from damp, muddy water without losing its purity.

TRANSFORMATION

A bud gradually unfolds into a complete bloom — like practice becoming expression.

GRACE

Its open form echoes the fluidity and expansion of classical dance.

The dancer is Garvita.

The central figure is based on the founder's own dance pose — turning the symbol into a personal signature.

A GENERIC SILHOUETTE → A PERSONAL MARK

The dancer sits at the heart of the lotus because Kalarpan is ultimately about the artist's relationship with the art form.

FOUNDER	Garvita Sharma
FORM	Kathak
GESTURE	Personalised pose
IDENTITY	Artist within the art

Ta • They • Tat

The three bols bring the language of Kathak directly into the visual mark.

Placed within the lotus petals, the bols become part of the flower itself — making the mark unmistakably connected to Kathak.

Clear space

Give the logo room to breathe. The clear-space rule protects the silhouette, wordmark and cultural details from visual competition.

X

X = CLEAR SPACE UNIT

The minimum clear space around the logo is equal to the height of the letter "X" in "KALARPAN".

KEY GUIDELINES

- No text, graphics or elements should encroach into this space.
- Maintain this clear space consistently across all applications.
- This protects the legibility and visual integrity of the logo.

LOGOMARK/ SYMBOL

The mark represents an artist offering her art — rooted in tradition, expressed through movement, and growing with every new beginning.

Primary, horizontal & monochrome

The system is designed to adapt across social media, print, signage and dark-background applications.

PRIMARY / VERTICAL

HORIZONTAL / PINK

HORIZONTAL / BLACK

HORIZONTAL / WHITE

A palette that moves from bloom to depth

The primary pinks create warmth and movement; wine, black and white provide hierarchy and flexibility.

KALARPAN

Used for the wordmark. Refined, classical and editorial.

Manrope — Semibold

Used for KATHAK DANCE INSTITUTE and supporting information.

Gotu

ता थेई तत्

Used for the Kathak bols inside the lotus petals.

Protect the identity

Use the approved logo variations consistently. Avoid modifications that weaken recognition or the balance of the mark.

DO

- ✓ Use approved colourways
- ✓ Maintain clear space
- ✓ Scale proportionally
- ✓ Use the horizontal lock-up when space is limited

DON'T

- ✗ Stretch, squash or rotate the logo
- ✗ Change the relationship between elements
- ✗ Add unapproved shadows or effects
- ✗ Place it where contrast or clear space is compromised

KALARPAN

AN OFFERING OF ART.

Rooted in Kathak. Inspired by offering. Created to grow.
